

The Freewill Question

The freewill question restated: Does my life matter? Does how I live my life matter? And is there a point, purpose or meaning in life?

In an attempt to shed light on these questions, let us suppose there are two elderly individuals lying in their death beds. When asked if they had any regrets in your life. One began declaring regrets too numerous to list. The other replied, I have only one, and that is I allowed others to live my life for me. Oh my g-d, what have I done?
